

OHV Users – Podcast

(Noise: 4-Wheeler revving up an engine)

Announcer:

Before you head down that trail, make sure your motorized vehicle is approved for that trail. The Forest Service manages over 150,000 miles of trails throughout the United States, but not all of these trails are open to all user types. Motorcycles, 4-wheelers, mountain bikes, and even horses are not allowed on each and every trail.

Before you head out, know where you are going. Get a local Forest map to make sure you are on the right trail with the right piece of equipment. Assure that all users can enjoy their national forests by doing your part. "Know before you go." This message is brought to you by the US Forest Service.

(Noise: 4-Wheeler revving up an engine)